The Right to Work

Chrysalis believes that every individual has the right to meaningful work. Some choose to volunteer to give back to their community. Others obtain paid work to discover a new community. Whatever the path is, Chrysalis provides support and hope along the journey towards wellness and mental health recovery.

Thank you for supporting this work!

2013 Highlights

• 25 mental health consumers began paid employment this year. Help us grow our list of employers by completing the "business referral card" or visit our new website, www.workwithchrysalis.org.

- Our peer support program grew from 10 to 17 mental health consumers who collectively received over 700 hours of services.
- 175 community members participated in our annual Moving for Mental Health 5K and 1 Mile Run/Walk and raised over $5,000.

Mission

Chrysalis provides vocational services to persons in our community who have schizophrenia, major depression, and bipolar disorder.

Recovery At Work

Consumer Spotlight: Nick

Employer: Pegasus Games

Position: Cleaning

"Nick knows what to do and does it. We are happy because it frees up a lot of time for us."

-Lori,
Pegasus Store
Manager/Owner

Below Nick and Jeanne, Chrysalis Employment Specialist, discuss his job.

What does work mean to you?

Nick: It's fun. I get to meet new people.

Jeanne: Nick is such a wonderful human being. He is a pleasure to be around and it is nice to see other people appreciating him for what he brings to the group.

How did it feel when you got hired?

Nick: Great! It gets me out of the house. I like it a lot.

Jeanne: Nick was so excited when the employer told him he had the job. He wanted to call everyone. It is a wonderful thing to see.

How has Chrysalis helped?

Nick: Chrysalis is awesome. Jeanne has helped a lot. She didn't try to get me a job with food. She helped me figure out what to wear for a job, and how to talk and act at work.

Jeanne: Nick wants to avoid food establishments in order to avoid temptation. If we had found him a job in a restaurant, it might have been difficult for him. The whole idea of the Chrysalis model is to match a person's interests with an appropriate job, but in Nick's case, we wanted to find a healthy atmosphere for him as well.

How has a job changed your life?

Nick: Helps me see more things for my future. I can see stuff I want to change, like getting skinnier.

Jeanne: I have seen Nick develop more confidence in his abilities and in himself. He talks about what he would like to do, and things he would like to change. He talks of how the job is getting easier, he has lost a little bit of weight, and looks forward to doing more.
